Commercial Law League Announces Revised Agency Certification Program Is Now Available

Chicago 5/16/2014 — The CLLA debuted its newly revised commercial collection agency certification program on May 14, 2014.

Many of the current certification program elements remain the same, including validation of trust accounts, bonding requirements and on-site facility audits.

Some of the significant changes include a higher level of program impartiality, with documentation review and facility audits managed by the CLLA and its third-party agent, Acumen Solutions Group, LLC.

In addition, with the program, agency certification costs have decreased, in some cases by as much as 33 percent. The decrease is attributed to a more efficient control of the program costs, which has been accomplished without compromising the program's integrity.

“We are excited about the new commercial collection agency certification program,” said Anthony Hilvers, executive vice president of the CLLA. “The revised program retains the rigor credit grantors require in a certification program and will be objectively conducted and controlled by the CLLA, the oldest creditors’ rights organization in the U.S.”

“Acumen is thrilled to serve as an independent third-party auditing agent for the CLLA in the administration of its Commercial Collection Agency Certification Program,” Acumen President & CEO Anthony D’Elia said. “This role is a good fit for Acumen, based on the auditing and compliance services we currently provide to the ARM industry.”

Collection agencies that are interested in applying for commercial collection agency certification can visit the CLLA website at www.CLLA.org for more information on the program.
