

Commercial Law World

The official publication of the Commercial Law League of America

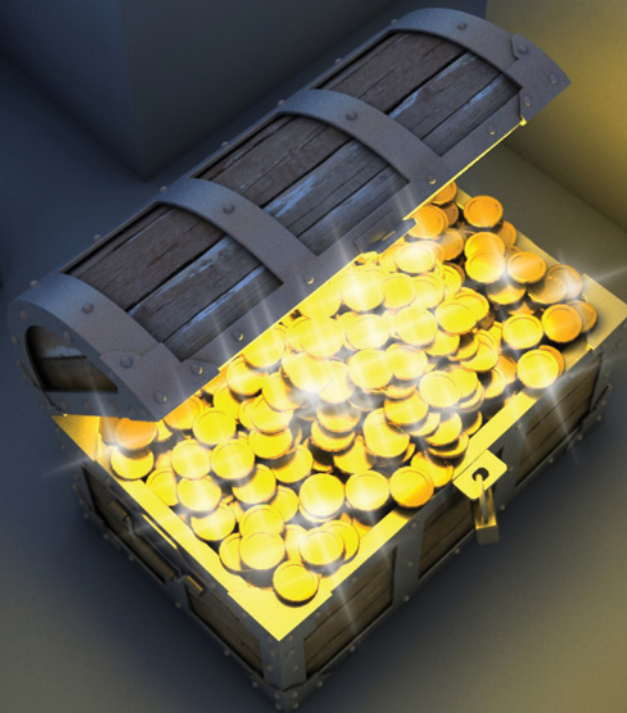

September/October 2011
Volume 29 • Issue 4

Finding Gold In An Empty Judgment

Enforcement of default judgments can be a tricky venture

Foiling Fraudulent Transfers

How the Uniform
Fraudulent Transfer
Act can help creditors
find money that's gone MIA

Also: News About The First Circuit Court And The Separate Filings Rule;
Chapter 11 debtors, hotels and rent-related cash flow — and more!

Contents

September/October 2011
Volume 29 • Issue 4

Industry Information

5 Legal News Round-Up

Get caught up on the latest news from Washington.

24 Tales From The Front

Timothy Wan shares the final installment of his Penguin Trilogy!

League Views:

3 The President's Page

CLLA President Beau Hays shares his thoughts on how e-mail communication can help connect — yet also overwhelm — recipients.

27 Viewpoint

Find out what League leaders discussed during the recent strategic planning session in Washington, D.C.!

28 CLLA Flashback

Law Lists and the CLLA have a rich history — much like the CLLA's practice of gathering member input.

Features

8 Turning The Sow's Ear Into The Silk Purse

Finding gold in an empty judgment.
By David Cook, Cook Collections Attorneys, PLC

13 First Circuit Adopts The "Separate Filings Rule" In Allocating A Refund Between A Debtor And a Nondebtor Spouse

An in-depth look at a Chapter 7-related tax refund case.
By Janice G. Marsh, Chapter 7 Trustee, District of Massachusetts

16 Foiling Fraudulent Transfers

When bankruptcy's pending, money often moves. Thanks to the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act, however, creditors can find — and oftentimes recover — their losses, even when the debtor is judgment proof.
By Matt Alderton

20 Ocean Place

Hotel revenues are personal property, not "rents."
By John S. Mairo, Esq., Porzio, Bromberg & Newman, P.C

Member News:

6 Regional/Section Round-up

Some of the CLLA's sections and regions weigh in with recent news — including a Strategic Planning Meeting recap!

23 Newly Admitted Members

Find out who joined the CLLA in July and August.

26 Member News

The latest news from CLLA members around the globe.